The buyer of this shirt would like to sell it again for financial reasons ---- Riro-Sport is a small shirt manufacturer, probably from West Germany (there are also shirts from Schalke 04 from the 1940s or Preußen Delbrück from the 1950s that were made by Riro). The DFB's standard supplier of national team shirts in the 1950s was „Leuzela“. The DFB was a poor association at the time and only ordered very few shirts from Leuzela because the associations had to pay for the shirts themselves. There was no shirt sponsorship yet. Back then, the shirts were all washed after games, repaired if damaged, and used for several games. The national team's equipment manager had to ensure that a complete, identical set of shirts was available for each game (i.e. numbers 1-11, since there were no substitutions yet). Sometimes one or two shirts were missing from a set of shirts because they could no longer be repaired or were too damaged by washing. Presumably these missing shirts were supplemented by individual orders from the company „ARIBA“, which is located in the vicinity of the DFB (Frankfurt), and from „Riro“. It was not uncommon for the players to wear the same shirts in a game, but they came from different manufacturers (e.g. in the 1972 European Championship, the DFB had „Erima“ and „Umbro“ shirts. But it can also be that one A complete set of shirts was ordered from „Riro“, which was then used in this international match against Austria. Stars like Helmut Rahn then took a shirt home with them, other players shouldn't have done that. „We would have been kicked out of the national team!“ (Quote from a national player who has already died to Wolfgang Fuhr, the auctioneer. Swap with the German player legend Richard Hofmann. Shirt of the legendary „Wunderteam“ from 1931-1933. Status: AAA. MUSEUM PIECE!! With COA!! --Long-sleeved shirt with lacing. With manufacturer's logo in the collar „ReSo“, size 5. The coat of arms of the Austrian Football Association with gold brocade and silk embroidery was sewn on. As usual during this time, no shirt number on the back. --Numerous darning points on the shirt, especially in the critical areas for shirt, armpits and lower waistband. Shirt was washed several times and was also worn in other international matches. But it doesn't prove that Sindelar wore this shirt in other games because the shirts had no numbers on the back. The fabric has become thinner after washing. There are small discolorations on the gold brocade embroidery on the coat of arms. The Austrian national team used two versions of this white long-sleeved shirt variant at the time, with a pointed seam at the end of the lacing and, as in this shirt, with an angled seam. According to our research, there is no evidence of a Wunderelf shirt from this period!!! According to the German magazine „FFHS“ (22nd place) and the English magazine „World Soccer“, Matthias Sindelar (1903-1939) is one of the 100 best soccer players of the 20th century. The Italian magazine „Guerino Sportivo“ lists Sindelar among the best 50 players of the 20th century. Sindelar, also known as „der Papierer“, played for Austria Vienna and won the Mitropa Cup twice with Austria (1933 + 1936). For the Austrian national team he made 43 international appearances in which he scored 26 goals. He reached the semi-finals with Austria at the 1934 World Cup. Matthias Sindelar is still the football legend in Austria today. Provenance: Richard Hofmann, one of the stars and the enfanterrible of German football, got this shirt directly from the Austrian star Matthias Sindelar after the game on September 13, 1931. Exchanging shirts was completely unusual at this time; it is not documented whether Hofmann gave Sindelar his shirt. Richard Hofmann later gave this shirt as a gift to Ernst Fritsch, the former tenant and former „patron“ of Dresdner SC. Mr. Fritsche ran the stadium casino from the 1930s to the 1950s before he had to give it up (expropriated). Richard Hofmann and other DSC Dresden players gave Mr. Fritsche a lot of souvenirs. Hofmann also gave Mr. Fritsch, among other things, the DFB shirt from the England game in 1930, another DFB international shirt in white from the 1930s and this Sindelar shirt. In 2012 the Fritsch family decided to give away this shirts. The Sindelar shirt was sold directly to a German collector, who owned it until 2024. Hofmann's DFB shirt 1930 was auctioned at AGON-Sportsworld on July 6, 2012. (LIMIT 22,000 €)
